NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE FOR THE PREVEN- TION OF BLINDNESS, INC.

MANAGING DIRECTOR'S REPORT

The Managing Director, appointed to succeed Mr. Edward M. Van Cleve, began his new work in September. His report, therefore, covers only four months of his administration and must of necessity confine itself largely to plans for the future.

What the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness has accomplished since its organization is well summarized in the resolutions adopted at the annual meeting in November commending the administration of the retiring Managing Director. These are given on pages 12-13 of this report.

RESIGNATION OF MRS. RAUSCH

Mrs. Alta Rausch has served the Committee as Financial Secretary from the beginning of its work until the retirement of Mr. Van Cleve. The Committee owes much to her untiring activities and great interest in the prevention of blindness. The following is taken from the News Letter of October 1923: "No organization can long live without a firm financial basis. The work of the Financial Secretary makes possible the carrying out of the program. For nine years Mrs. Rausch has quietly and unobtrusively raised the necessary budget for the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness.

Through lean years and years of rotund proportions she has labored indefatigably, unspoiled by success, undaunted by difficulties. The period of the war brought financial embarrassment to many social agencies, but through her ceaseless efforts and the generosity of the public, the Committee was able to continue its activities unhampered by lack of funds."

DEATH OF COLONEL LEWIS T. BRYANT

During the past year the National Committee lost through death one of its directors, Colonel Lewis T. Bryant, Commissioner of Labor of the State of New Jersey. Col. Bryant had served as director only a few months, but had shown great interest in the work of the Committee.

FUTURE GROWTH

Can we in the future expect an increase in membership in the same ratio as in the past? During nine years the number of supporters has increased from 65 to over 5,000. Can we expect to receive from our friends additional funds so that the services of the Committee may be multiplied proportionately as they have been in the past? Are the demands for service by the Committee sufficient to warrant requests for additional funds and for an extension of membership? To all of these questions there can be only one answer. Although the Committee will be encouraged by what has been accomplished, those most closely in touch with its activities know that the work for the prevention of blindness and conservation of sight has only fairly begun.

LEGISLATION

It is indeed a matter of gratification to report that every state in the Union has some legislation to prevent blindness and to conserve sight. However, in no state is there entirely satisfactory legislation; in some it is very unsatisfactory. Still further attention must be given to legislation in all the aspects which pertain to the conservation of vision, and must continue until every state in the Union has a satisfactory ophthalmia neonatorum law, and until we have no more blind babies; until every state board of health is vested with proper authority to provide for the elimination of communicable eye diseases and until there are no more trachoma areas; until in every state there is a satisfactory medical inspection law, which provides for the careful examination of the eyes of school children; until in every state there is provision for the establishment of conservation of vision classes, so that no child may lack an education through the handicap of poor sight; until the eyes of workers in industrial and other occupations are properly safeguarded.

This legislative program in itself is a big one, and one in which we can expect only relatively slow progress. The National Committee must, however, maintain its leadership in this respect, and must be a clearing house of information to all states requesting assistance, and must stand ready at all times to serve a state in comparing its existing legislation with that of other states and with such ideal legislation as the National Committee may formulate. To render this service, additional competent staff assistants are necessary.

EDUCATIONAL

Notwithstanding the large amount of literature sent out by the Committee, only a small part of our population has been reached. The demand for the publications of the Committee has never been artificially stimulated. As a matter of fact, the Committee has had to limit its circulation of published material and could promote its cause much more rapidly if funds were available to meet the demands. As an example of this, the Junior Committee for the Prevention of Blindness, a standing committee of this organization, has recently designed and published a bookplate which contains simple instructions to a child about the care and use of its eyes. Immediately following a very limited distribution of samples of this bookplate, there came requests for additional copies in such numbers as would require all of the funds of the Committee to supply.

There is a constant demand for reprints of the publications of the Committee; new publications should be added to those already issued.

As a part of the educational work of the Committee, co-operative relationships have been established with a number of teachers' colleges. It is believed that no more effective work can be done in sight conservation than in reaching the prospective teachers of our future citizens. The demands for this particular service are far in excess of our limited capacity to satisfy. The Secretary of the Committee has given a considerable time to this service, as is indicated in her report, yet only a small proportion of the prospective teachers in any state has been reached. The demand for this type of service is so great that several persons could be employed exclusively in this work.

PUBLICITY

This is the age of education through publicity. Newspapers, magazines, trade journals, religious publications, labor organization journals, etc., all look to national organizations to supply them with authoritative and interesting information relative to their work. The term "publicity" as used here must not be confused with that type which obnoxiously pushes itself to the front, or which distributes what at best may be considered of questionable value. "Publicity" is used here to refer only to that kind of material for which there is a legitimate demand, which the Committee so far never has met adequately. Approved publicity requires time, ability and money to make it acceptable to the press and to the public.

RESEARCH

The Committee must continue and extend its scientific research. During the coming year it is hoped that a beginning may be made in answering the following questions:

1. What are the percentages of people with serious eye defects at certain given ages?
2. What percentage of school children have seriously defective vision?
3. What is the effect of poor school lighting upon vision?
4. To what extent is poor vision a factor in retardation?

No definite answer can be given to any of these questions at the present time, because no definite information is available.

In addition to these inquiries, the Committee hopes to continue and to extend its census of eye accidents undertaken in August. At the present time some information is available concerning over 1,500 eye accidents from all causes.

THE NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE

The New York State Committee is a standing committee of the National Committee, and is financed by funds from the general treasury. The work of this Committee should be extended and the co-operation now existing between the Committee and the New York State Commission for the Blind should be carried out to the fullest extent. The New York State Commission for the Blind is established by legislative authority, and as a State Commission may be able to use to advantage such assistance as the National Committee, a voluntary private organization, may be able to extend. It is also suggested that the New York State Committee may serve as a type of organization which may be effected in other sections of the country. May it not be possible during the coming years to have other standing committees similar to the New York State Committee, which will represent our membership in other parts of the country?

NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE

THE JUNIOR COMMITTEE

The latest development of the National Committee's work has been the organization of the Junior Committee. This Junior Committee, like the New York State Committee, is a standing committee. It has so far three specific aims: first, to enlist the active support of the younger people in our communities in a program of sight conservation among children; second, to provide suitable talks for the younger children of our schools; third, to publish material suitable for children. The work of the Junior Committee has only begun. Its usefulness could be greatly extended if more money were available for its work.

FINANCIAL

The aims set forth above can be accomplished just to the extent to which our friends may provide funds for the work. The National Committee will continue during the coming year to seek additional friends, already potentially in existence, who need only to be approached to join our work through contributions. It will also strive to extend the interest of those who have already been such staunch supporters of the Committee during the nine years of its existence.

RESOLUTIONS

ADOPTED BY THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS AND THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE FOR THE PREVENTION OF BLINDNESS, NOVEMBER 15, 1923

The Directors of the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness deeply regret the fact that Edward M. Van Cleve has been compelled to resign from the position of Managing Director of the Committee and desire to express to him their individual and collective appreciation of the great value of the work that he has done as its executive officer. It was largely due to his realization of the need of such work and to his persistent courage and faith in the possibility of its being established on a sound basis that the Committee was launched and has been steered so successfully.

The notable progress made during the nine years under his administrative guidance can best be shown by a few concrete facts. When the Committee was organized in January, 1915, its financial support came almost entirely from two grants of $5,000 each from the Rockefeller and Russell Sage Foundations. During 1915 sixty-five contributors were obtained who gave a little more than $1,000, bringing the income to less than $12,500 in all. In 1923 the income will probably exceed $50,000, nearly all obtained from about 6,000 contributors scattered all over the country and without any aid from foundations. There is also an invested fund of $45,000.

In 1915 Mr. Van Cleve began with one staff assistant and two office helpers; now there are besides the Managing Director five members of the staff and five on the office force.

Since 1915 the Committee has issued twenty-four publications on various subjects which have been widely useful, besides issuing the News Letter which now requires an edition of 10,000 copies. A collection of over 600 slides has been made for use in lectures, three motion picture films have been produced, a number of telling posters have been distributed, and an effective service to newspapers is carried on. Courses of lectures are being given in normal schools.

The Committee has been influential in establishing various state commissions and local associations to deal with blindness, in some of which prevention of blindness and conservation of vision form part and in others all of their program. It has also induced a number of such organizations which existed before this Committee was started to include prevention and conservation in their work. In 1915 lamentably few states had on their statute books laws that dealt adequately with the various phases of preventing blindness and conserving sight. Now every state in the Union has included some phase of the subject in its legislation, although many of the laws are far from sufficient to meet the need. Directly or indirectly the Committee has given assistance in drafting and passing laws to all forty-eight states, as well as to Porto Rico and Honolulu.

A junior committee has been started auspiciously which issues a Junior News Letter and enlists the services of children.

These developments represent inadequately the growing success of the Committee in arousing interest in its objects and creating a widespread intelligent public opinion which is exerting a strong influence to secure the reduction of the numbers of those who are unnecessarily deprived of their sight. But they indicate that under the guidance of Mr. Van Cleve the Committee has achieved definite practical results which constitute a noteworthy contribution to human happiness and welfare. And it must also be said that there could be no clearer evidence of Mr. Van Cleve's executive ability than the loyalty of his effective staff to him and to the Committee, and their cheerful spirit of devotion to the work.

The Board offers to Mr. Van Cleve its hearty good wishes that he may find in whatever he undertakes the same full measure of success that has attended his efforts as Managing Director of the Committee.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY

"Blindness is always the result of abnormal or unjust conditions," writes Winifred Holt Mather. "Disease, illness, dirt, accident, shock, crime, or that supreme malady of disordered bodies and souls,—war. Therefore, blindness is in the main preventable, as were the plagues of ancient times, or as are the yellow fevers, malarias and typhoids of our own time. Blindness should be and can be prevented. It should be cried from the housetops as well as preached in popular papers and scientific journals. It should be taught in schools, theatres, clinics and churches where, alas, there are far too many ears that hear not and eyes that see not."

During the past year the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness has indeed cried its message from the housetops. Newspapers, popular and scientific magazines have been numbered in its lists. Schools, theatres, clinics and churches have been the scene of its labors. Many are the ears that have been unstopped and many are the eyes that have been opened.

The Committee makes no pretense of claiming many of the numerous achievements for saving sight and preventing blindness made in various directions during the past year. It is not the function of a national organization to do case work. Its main purpose is to stand back of the state and local organizations, to act as a leaven, and to lighten their work through legislative and educational efforts.

CONSERVATION OF VISION CLASSES—1913-1923

It was in 1909 that Edward E. Allen returned from a visit to England, where he had carefully studied the classes for myopes established in London by Dr. N. Bishop Harman. In his own school for the blind, Mr. Allen had long tried to cope with the problem of the child with seriously defective vision. Classes similar to Dr. Harman's seemed a solution, but it was not until April, 1913, that, largely through his efforts and the generosity of

NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE

Perkins Institution, the first sight conservation class in America was opened in Boston. Mr. Robert B. Irwin, Cleveland Board of Education, had been thinking along the same lines, and in September of that year, a sight conservation class was started in Cleveland. Mr. Allen is the founder and originator of the idea in America; to Mr. Irwin belongs the credit of its development.

During the decade, the growth has been slow, but very sure. From two classes in 1913 representing the East and the Middle West, the number has increased to 181 classes in 1923. East and West, North and South, have joined hands in the effort to save the sight of and provide an education for children with such seriously defective vision that they cannot be educated in the regular grade. It is the right of these children, not their privilege. If the state makes education compulsory, it must provide means to carry out its mandates.

Following the terrible Halifax disaster of December 6, 1917, Canada established its first conservation of vision class, in order to care for the children whose vision had been seriously affected by the explosion. Canada, too, has moved slowly toward this educational goal; three classes have been established in Toronto and one in Winnipeg.

It is natural that New York City, with its enormous school population of over 1,000,000 children, should have the greatest number of classes, now totaling 50, but even this number does not care for all children needing such special educational advantages as these classes offer.

The first sight saving class in a parochial school was established in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

A problem that is calling loudly for attention is that of occupational opportunities for graduates of sight conservation classes. It is a far more serious problem than occupations for the blind, since whatever form of work the blind undertake their sight cannot be strained, whereas this possible effect must always be guarded against in recommending occupations for those with seriously defective vision. The National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness is, with the assistance of supervisors and teachers of sight conservation classes all over the country, listing suitable occupations, so that the work of the school may not be undermined by later conditions.

LIGHTING OF SCHOOL BUILDINGS

It is of import that school conditions shall not be such as to swell the ranks of sight conservation classes and of schools and classes for the blind. Lighting conditions, seating conditions, correct interior decorations, good ventilation, and avoidance of glare are a few of the material considerations that must be given to school buildings. To meet one of the most important of these subjects, "The Code of Lighting School Buildings," issued by the Illuminating Engineering Society in 1918, has been revised to meet later requirements and improvements. The National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness has assisted in this revision, and its Secretary has been made chairman of a committee to prepare a non-technical edition for the use of teachers.

Manufacturers are as a rule anxious to comply with suggestions for more hygienic seats and desks, and to produce school furniture in a dull finish so that glare from this source may be avoided. The Committee has enlisted the interest of several manufacturers along this line who are willing to meet the requirements, but the demand for such furniture must be created, or the supply will not be forthcoming. If all school commissioners, superintendents and principals will band together to refuse to accept school furniture unless it is hygienic, if those in charge of the decoration of school walls and ceilings will substitute light colors for dark, and flat finish for varnished surfaces, and will give equal consideration to the wood work; if school authorities and architects will follow the advice of the lighting code, there will not be so many children in our public schools of the future suffering from eye strain, or so many needing the advantages of a sight conservation class.

COURSES FOR CONSERVATION OF VISION TEACHERS

The importance of sight conservation classes is being recognized in more ways than one. A decade ago, the work was so experimental that teachers were obliged to blaze the trail for themselves. Today, training is being offered not only in summer courses, but in regular college programs. During the past year three courses have been offered. One in the School of Education at Harvard, one at the summer session of Peabody College at Nashville, Tennessee, and one by New York University.

The Harvard course has been given for the past three years in combination with a course for teachers of the blind. It is likewise the third year of the course at New York University. The Peabody course was given for the second time.

Educators are coming more and more to the realization that the education of the blind is along totally different lines from that of children with defective vision. The former are finger readers, and must be taught to see with the eyes of the mind through the sense of touch. The latter must have type, maps, etc., especially adapted to sick eyes, since anyone having any amount of vision will use the eye rather than the hand for interpretation of the idea. The teacher who attempts to apply the methods used in teaching the blind to children with defective vision, is approaching the work from the wrong angle.

The summer course at Peabody was given entirely for the benefit of teachers of children with defective vision. The New York University course devotes half the time to each subject, since the Board of Education of the City of New York still requires teachers preparing for a sight conservation class to pass an examination for both lines of work. The course at Harvard devotes most of its time to work for the blind. It is planned to give more courses in 1924 devoted exclusively to sight conservation work; arrangements have already been made for a course in the 1924 summer school of Peabody College.

NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE

STUDY OF EYE CLINICS

A splendid achievement of the ophthalmological section of the Associated Out-Patient Clinics of the Academy of Medicine of New York has been an intensive study of eye clinics of the city, and the drawing up of certain clinical standards. As a result of this and other activities, particularly some demonstration work done by the New York State Commission for the Blind, some of the hospitals in New York City have already instituted changes which make for much more effective care of the eyes. One hospital has arranged that every serious case shall automatically be referred to the social service department for follow-up work.

SURVEY OF POST OFFICE CONDITIONS

Another important undertaking has been a survey made by the office of Industrial Hygiene and Sanitation of the Public Health Service, covering the relationship between the volume of light in post offices and the eye strain of employees. Two typical post offices were chosen, one modern and one of an older type. The report submitted to the post office department showed figures heavily in favor of those employees working in the modern offices, while speed tests in sorting and handling mails showed an increase of 4.4% under adequate lighting conditions. The report recommends the adoption of a standard system of artificial illumination in all post offices.

WORK IN NORMAL SCHOOLS AND TEACHERS' COLLEGES

With the great increase in school population, especially in large cities, school doctors and nurses cannot begin to cope with the problem of health inspection. Hence, much of the preliminary work and practically all of the health teaching must devolve on the grade teacher. Gradually the normal schools and teachers' colleges are including training in this very important part of their program. The standard requirements on what teachers should know concerning the care of the eyes of the children under their charge, drawn up by the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness, have been put into national use. The Secretary has given a number of courses on the subject, some covering the full standard requirements and others such as the time at command permitted. The full course was given at Fredonia Normal School, New York, the summer session of Peabody College, the summer session of the University of Maine, the summer session of the State Normal School at Castine, Maine. Parts of the course were presented at Chicago Normal School, DeKalb Normal School, North Western University, University of Cincinnati, New Jersey State Normal, Newark, New York State Normal, Oswego, and the following teacher-training institutions in Virginia: Virginia Normal and Industrial Institute, Petersburg, Blackstone College, Farmville State Normal, State Normal, East Radford, University of Virginia, State Normal at Harrisonburg and Bridgewater College.

It is quite another problem to reach the teachers already in service. The State of Virginia has passed a law requiring that all teachers shall be able by 1925 to present credentials showing their ability to teach health education. To make this possible, the summer schools of Virginia have arranged special health courses, and for those who cannot attend, correspondence courses are given. In 1923 over half of the teachers in Virginia took advantage of these opportunities.

Michigan is preparing teachers to carry out health inspection through lecture work and the issuance of a special manual on this subject.

OPHTHALMIA NEONATORUM

Statistics regarding the decrease in the number of cases of blindness resulting from ophthalmia neonatorum are very encouraging. Of 56,247 births in Chicago in 1922, there was not a single case of blindness from this disease so far as the authorities are aware. Baltimore is able to give like testimony. Nashville, Tennessee, reports no case of blindness from this disease in the past 11 years. These results have been brought about chiefly by the early reporting of any case of ophthalmia neonatorum that developed, and the prompt action of the Board of Health and co-operating agencies in getting skilled medical attention. In Chicago the quick action of the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness is responsible for saving the sight of many babies.

But back of this encouraging outlook is the fact that altogether too many cases of the disease develop, involving one of two factors—either the precautionary measure of using a prophylactic at birth is not being taken, or a secondary infection is allowed to develop through carelessness; either is inexcusable. Blindness is not the only possible result of ophthalmia neonatorum; the actual sight may be saved, but the eyes may carry corneal scars that will cause a life handicap. It is not blindness alone that must be prevented; the cause must be eradicated.

That there is a grave tendency to relax vigilance, a letter of Dr. F. Park Lewis bears witness. It appeared in the September, 1923, issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association:

“There was recently born in an accredited hospital in a large city, well supplied with skillful physicians, a strong, well-formed child. The hospital was under the care of a board of philanthropic and intelligent directors, and was visited by a regularly appointed staff. The child was illegitimate, and ophthalmia neonatorum might have been expected. It promptly developed. Inflammation went on in both eyes to corneal ulceration, staphyloma, and complete and incurable blindness. It does not appear that any prophylactic was employed when the child was born, and certainly no ophthalmologist was called in counsel until after the child’s eyes were hopelessly lost. This case is by no means unique. So far have protective measures been forgotten that recent statistics from Pennsylvania show that in 1920 in only twenty cases out of thirty-five, and 1921 in only twenty-two out of thirty-three, was any prophylactic employed, and of forty-nine cases reported aside from those left with defective vision, two were made absolutely blind.”

** White pupils.

The statistics received from 48 schools and classes for the blind show a reduction from last year of 1.1 per cent of new admissions blind from ophthalmia neonatorum: The full table is given on pages 22-23. The Committee cannot be responsible for the accuracy of these, since many superintendents of such schools still report that the only records are those of parents or guardians, who all too often are ignorant of the actual cause. Gradually examinations are being made of blind pupils by oculists; the extension of this plan will not only lead to more nearly accurate statistics but what is of the greatest possible importance, to the finding of individuals blind from causes that can be eliminated. Many children thought to be blind for life have been discovered to be suffering from operable cataract, and have been given useful vision by the skilled hand of the eye surgeon; others practically blind from interstitial keratitis have had their sight greatly benefited by proper blood treatment, while phlyctenular keratitis cases have often received nearly normal vision through treatment for tuberculosis. The Committee urges examination by a skilled oculist for every child in every school for the blind.

WOOD ALCOHOL POISONING

The 1923 statistical Bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company shows a decided decrease in the death rate from wood alcohol poisoning. There were 71 deaths from this cause registered in 1921; 36 in 1922, and but 27 in 1923.

It is practically impossible to obtain any reliable statistics regarding total or partial blindness resulting from wood alcohol poisoning, but it seems to be a fair estimate that the vast amount of educational work that has been done to acquaint the public with the dangers arising from wood alcohol poisoning is having an effect, and that the decrease in death rate from this cause indicates a like decrease in eye troubles.

LEGISLATION

The great majority of state legislatures meet biennially in odd numbered years, hence there was considerable legislative activity in 1923. The report of the Minnesota Commission appointed by Governor Pruss in 1922 to inquire into conditions concerning the blind, and to make recommendations for their welfare and also recommendations for preventing blindness was a masterpiece that many other states might do well to copy. It resulted in the establishment of a department in the State Board of Control which is charged with direct responsibility of helping to prevent blindness and also led to aggressive work in helping to eliminate trachoma. It is expected that further legislation will be enacted as the result of the survey made when the next meeting of the legislature is held.

The Michigan Legislature passed a law authorizing the board of education of any school district to establish and maintain schools and classes for children having such seriously defective vision that they cannot be profitably or safely educated in the regular grade. The law provides funds for the maintenance of such classes.

The Kansas State Legislature passed a law creating a commission for the blind and making an annual appropriation for its work. In addition to the usual responsibilities placed upon a state commission for the blind, the act provides:

"That it shall be the duty of the commission to co-operate with state and local boards and agencies, both public and private, in preventing the loss of sight, in alleviating the condition of * * * persons with failing sight * * *. The commission shall co-operate with the state and local boards of health, the state and local boards of education, and such other state and local agencies as may be directly or indirectly concerned with the prevention of blindness and the conservation of vision and shall furthermore seek to disseminate information concerning the proper care of the eyes, such information to be prepared in co-operation with the department or departments which may be concerned."

The Oklahoma Legislature more than doubled the annual appropriation for the Commission for the Adult Blind, thus enabling the Commission to add to the number of its field workers and to extend its service to include work for the prevention of blindness.

Several states not having legislative sessions have not been idle. Wyoming added rules and regulations of the State Board of Health, making ophthalmia neonatorum a reportable disease; empowering the Health Department to secure attention for uncared for cases; requiring the printing of the law on the birth certificate; requiring physicians and midwives to use a prophylactic; placing the question on the birth certificate whether or not a prophylactic was used; and distributing literature.

The Virginia Commission for the Blind drew up a most comprehensive program for sight saving and prevention of blindness. Among the provisions are the following:

Courses of lectures in the normal schools.

Establishment of sight saving classes.

Educational publicity campaigns.

Publishing of brief bulletins.

Saving the sight of the individual.

Appointment of field secretaries for educational and case work.

Co-operation with other agencies.

California established the California Association for the Blind, making prevention of blindness the first essential of its program. Among the projects immediately confronting the society are: The organization of a state-wide campaign for the prevention of infant blindness and blindness from industrial accidents and other causes; the establishment of a nursery and kindergarten for blind children of pre-school age; the securing of more adequate provisions for the education of intelligent blind children, and for the separate housing and proper care of the feeble-minded blind; agitation for more adequate provisions for the indigent and helpless blind, particularly the aged; the establishment of special wards for eye cases in the larger hospitals of the state; definite assurance of the continuation of home teaching for the adult blind; the development of vocational training and education of the blind; the establishment of a placement agency for blind persons who are endeavoring to become self-supporting.

FILMS

The use of motion picture films is somewhat limited because of the great expense incurred, not only in production, but by wear and tear. A careless or amateur operator may so damage a film at one showing that it becomes practically a loss. Where copies of films are produced in very large quantities, the expense is proportionately less, and the damage occurring is not, therefore, so expensive a proposition as with more limited numbers. In spite of these restrictions, however, the Committee films have been used extensively and have evoked wide-spread interest.

SLIDES

Although motion pictures are largely replacing slides, there are times and places in which the latter are preferable, hence the demand for them continues. New slides are constantly being added to the Committee's large collection. Four organizations have sent out the Committee's slides on their educational circuits of visual instruction for the past three years. Other organizations and individuals have kept other sets in practically continuous use for lecture purposes. The Attractoscope, an automatic device for showing slides, has increased their usefulness. It is not uncommon to see groups of people at noon time or on their way to and from places of employment, pause a moment to watch the pictures. During the past year a special set of Attractoscope slides has been arranged.

ACCIDENTS

In August the Committee began collecting statistics of accidents to the eyes from all causes. It is hoped during the coming year to secure more adequate reports from which to draw some rather definite conclusions as to the causes, and to make recommendations which may help to reduce loss of sight from accidents. The study deals more particularly with accidents which are not industrial.

The Committee's revised publication, "Eye Hazards in Industrial Occupations" will be issued early in the spring. As the study developed, more and more research became necessary and for this reason the publication has been delayed. The Committee is confident that this book will be of help in reducing the large amount of blindness and partial loss of sight in the industries of the country.

LECTURE WORK

Personal contact is often an important factor in educational work. That this is recognized is evidenced by the great demand for lectures and radio talks on every phase of care for the eyes. During the past year members of the staff and co-operating ophthalmologists have given 325 lectures to audiences approximating 57,034 people. Seven radio talks have been given. The number reached by these cannot be even estimated, but letters from "listeners in" indicate that people all over the United States and Canada have been interested. The demand is constantly growing for series of lectures, rather than for isolated talks. This is a move in the right direction, for various phases of the subject can thus be presented adequately, and the tendency of trying to cover too much at one session be checked.

Publication No. 9, Summary of State Laws and Rulings Relating to the Prevention of Blindness from Babies' Sore Eyes, has been revised to January, 1924. Since the previous issue, revised to January, 1922, a number of changes have taken place.

Alabama has placed the reporting law on the birth certificate, together with the question as to whether or not a prophylactic was used.

Arizona has made ophthalmia neonatorum a reportable disease.

Arkansas has made it compulsory for physicians and midwives to use a prophylactic, and has placed on the birth certificate the question whether or not it was used.

Delaware has placed the same question on the birth certificate.

The District of Columbia has placed the reporting law on the birth certificate; distributes free prophylactics to physicians; requires physicians and midwives to use a prophylactic; places the question of its use on the birth certificate.

Georgia now distributes free prophylactic outfits.

Iowa has placed the question of the use of the prophylactic on the birth certificate.

Missouri has changed the time within which births must be reported from 10 days to 48 hours.

New Hampshire distributes free prophylactic outfits.

New Mexico has made the disease reportable; has empowered the Board of Health to secure attention for uncared for cases; distributes free prophylactic outfits in some counties; requires physicians and midwives to use a prophylactic; and has placed the question of the use of a prophylactic on the birth certificate.

North Dakota and South Carolina distribute free prophylactic outfits.

Tennessee has under consideration the free distribution of these outfits.

Texas has placed the reporting law on the birth certificate, and requires physicians and midwives to use a prophylactic.

Virginia has placed the question concerning the use of the prophylactic on the birth certificate.

Wyoming has made the disease reportable; has empowered the Board of Health to take charge of uncared for cases; has placed

GENERAL PUBLICITY

During the past year the publicity of the Committee has been under the direction of Mr. Louis Resnick, formerly editor of the National Safety News. He has given widespread information regarding the activities of the Committee through press and magazine articles.

FIELD WORK

ILLINOIS

At the request of the Illinois Association for the Prevention of Blindness, the Secretary of the National organization spent two weeks in that State, giving lectures to normal school students, women's clubs, settlement groups, etc.; and holding conferences particularly with educational authorities in regard to better lighting and seating conditions in the schools.

INDIANA

The Secretary spent a particularly interesting day in Gary, visiting the schools, and advising with the medical director and the superintendent of schools in regard to lighting conditions.

KANSAS

A representative visited Kansas twice during the 1923 session of the legislature. He assisted in securing a law which provides for the establishment of a State Commission for the Blind which also has responsibility for the prevention of blindness.

LOUISIANA

At the request of the Louisiana Commission for the Blind a representative of the Committee assisted in a sight conservation week in New Orleans.

NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE

MAINE

At the request of the Maine Public Health Association, and the Maine State Board of Education, the Secretary gave two courses of lectures: one in the summer session of the University of Maine; the other in the summer session of the Maine Normal School at Castine. The latter course was of particular interest since all the teachers were from rural communities and had been selected because of their particular ability for bettering conditions in rural schools. There were 95 members in the class, with a full attendance at every session. There was likewise present a group of nurses, specializing in health education, practically all from rural communities. This group not only attended the course of lectures given for teachers but requested special talks for the particular groups.

MINNESOTA

The work of the Commission for the Blind as discussed in the last annual report resulted in the passage of a law which provides for a department for the blind in the State Board of Control. This law provides definite responsibilities in the conservation of sight. The National Committee gave assistance to the Minnesota Commission in securing this act.

MISSISSIPPI

The Mississippi Association for the Blind takes an active interest in sight conservation. During the spring a two weeks campaign was organized and a representative of the Committee gave talks and held conferences in a large number of cities in the State.

NEW JERSEY

The Secretary lectured to a number of groups in the State Normal School at Newark. During the year the first sight conservation class in the State was established in Paterson.

NEW YORK

In March a full course of lectures arranged for students in normal schools was given in the Fredonia State Normal School, the Secretary giving the lectures to the prospective teachers on the care of the eyes of their future pupils and the Assistant

NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE

Secretary giving the demonstration talks to the pupils in the practice classes. The lighting conditions in the normal school, library, and practice class rooms were studied and suggestions for improvements made. Talks were also given to the junior high and elementary school pupils of the town.

In Dunkirk, the secretary addressed all the teachers of the public schools of the city. A number of the public schools and the junior high school were visited, where demonstration talks were given to the pupils.

To determine the percentage of children in rural schools who are suffering from defective vision, a survey was made of the eyes of the children in the rural schools of Albany County. This was undertaken at the request of the Medical School Inspector of the University of the State of New York and carried out in co-operation with the New York State Commission for the Blind. Of the 4,165 children examined 676, or 16.2 percent, were found to have some eye difficulty. Full details of the survey are given in the report of the New York State Committee.

OHIO

The Secretary spent a week in Cincinnati, delivering a course of lectures at the university, and meeting groups of teachers in conference. The Committee received the most cordial co-operation from Dr. Condon, Superintendent of Schools, and Miss Estella Laws, Supervisor of Sight Conservation Classes. In June the Secretary attended the Conference of the Ohio State Teachers' Association, and addressed two groups.

OKLAHOMA

A representative of the Committee assisted the Oklahoma Commission for the Adult Blind to secure additional appropriations from the state legislature and to inaugurate a campaign for saving sight.

TENNESSEE

At the request of Peabody College, the Secretary gave two courses of lectures in the Summer School: one for teachers in training for sight conservation classes; and the other for teachers in the regular grades. Conferences were held with the director and staff of the Tennessee Commission for the Blind, looking to the initiation of a fuller program in preventive work, and with educators and others interested in conservation of vision. The Secretary addressed the normal school for colored students, the Lions Club and the Kiwanis Club.

VIRGINIA

At the request of the State Board of Education, the State Board of Health and the Virginia Commission for the Blind, the Secretary spent two weeks in that state, lecturing at the teacher training institutions and holding conferences for the planning of programs for sight conservation.

REPRESENTATION

The Committee has been represented at the following conferences:

The National Conference of Social Work.

The annual meeting of the American Public Health Association.

The convention of the National Safety Council.

The annual meeting of the American Child Health Association.

The annual meeting of the National Society for Vocational Education.

The New York State Conference of Charities and Correction.

As the passing year draws to a close, its accomplishments, satisfactory and gratifying as they are, give precedence to the great opportunities and responsibilities of the years that are to come. Well, indeed, will it be if each in turn adds its quota of fulfillment in bringing to pass the illuminating prognostication of Dr. Harry Best:

"The issue of prevention will in time be discovered to be the fundamental one in regard to the blind, and it may well come to pass that the various measures now being planned or executed for the benefit of the sightless will be regarded as but temporary and provisional—for in the fullness of our faith, we may look to the coming of a time, to be brought near according as we bestir ourselves, when this affliction of the bearers of which we have written, shall be lifted from among men—when blindness itself shall be no more."

REPORT OF THE JUNIOR COMMITTEE

On January 1, 1923, the Junior Committee for the Prevention of Blindness was inaugurated as a standing committee of the senior organization, for the purpose of more intensively carrying on the Committee's work with children. The object of the Juniors is two-fold: first, that children may be educated in proper care and use of their eyes; second, that they be moved to share in saving the eyes of less fortunate children by helping to support the work of the Junior Committee.

One hundred and nine Juniors were enrolled in 1923, while fifteen interested adults contributed to the work for children. Memberships received range from twenty-five cents to ten dollars a year.

A limited staff makes it impossible for the Junior Committee without volunteer assistance to extend its activities as it feels they should be extended; therefore efforts have been made to interest volunteers to carry on intensive local work. In March, 1923, the Baltimore Junior League formed a committee for the prevention of blindness, with the chairman, Miss Dorothy H. Levering, acting as an advisory member of the National Junior Committee and reporting at regular intervals on her committee's work. The group, consisting of five members, gave careful consideration to the question of children's eyesight, and through the co-operation of the Department of Health obtained a tabulation of eye defects and diseases in the city schools. By her study of local conditions and needs, Miss Levering has prepared herself to engineer a committee, beginning with the new year, along some very definite lines leading to improvement of eyesight among the children of Baltimore.

The Philadelphia Junior League also formed a committee for the prevention of blindness in March, under the chairmanship of Miss Annette Parke, who was appointed an advisory member of the National Junior Committee. The first work of this group of five was to make a canvass of private schools in and around Philadelphia to acquaint the schools with the work of the Committee and see which ones would care to have talks on eye care before their student bodies. As a result of the canvass, nine lectures were given in October at six Philadelphia schools by the Secretary from national headquarters; and the Junior League Committee continues its efforts to bring organizations and individuals to see the importance of education in simple sight saving principles. The Main Line Federation—an organization dealing with social problems of six townships along the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad—has asked the Philadelphia Committee's help in carrying children to and from the eye clinic and in following up some of the cases that need continued treatment. Miss Parke plans to arrange for such help as soon as possible.

The value of good volunteer service is fully realized by the Junior Committee for the Prevention of Blindness. In inaugurating the work of their committees and supervising activities in their local fields, Miss Parke and Miss Levering have shown ability and conscientious effort; to them and to their fellow-workers appreciative thanks are due.

During the year the Secretary addressed groups of the Baltimore and Philadelphia Junior Leagues, and the Junior League of Wilmington, Delaware. One hundred and thirty-four talks were given by the staff, reaching approximately 29,675 children, and a story talk was broadcasted by radio.

The Committee contributed an article to the May number of the national Junior League Bulletin. Junior News Letters No. 1 and No. 2 were issued in October and December, each with an edition of 3,000 copies, for distribution to Junior members and other interested individuals. The News Letter treats of eye troubles in a simple, readable way; it contains advice as to care of the eyes and reports news of the sight-saving movement.

Of particular interest was the preparation of a book-plate bearing suggestions for correct use of the eyes. The illustration for the plate was designed and contributed by a member of the Baltimore Junior League Committee, Miss Mabel W. Whiteley, and pains were taken to produce an educational message that would carry a special appeal to children. Five hundred and ninety-eight copies were distributed to Junior members, to various libraries, Red Cross organizations, school principals and educators. Publishers of children's books were approached with the suggestion that the book-plate be reproduced on the inside covers or fly-leaves of their books; replies showed their appreciation of the importance of good printing in its relation to eyesight. At the request of Small, Maynard and Co., and Frederick A. Stokes Co., electros of the plate were furnished these two companies for use wherever possible on juvenile books.

This youngest child of the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness advances with slow but sure steps, encouraged by the public's interest, by the ready response from girls and boys in different parts of the United States, and by the co-operation of educational institutions and authorities. Expenses for the first year have been met by funds from the general treasury. May the Committee's hopes materialize and the child so increase in stature that it can go forward confidently—an active organization of children, by children and for children.

REPORT OF THE NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE FOR THE PREVENTION OF BLINDNESS, 1921-1923

The New York State Committee for the Prevention of Blindness, a standing committee of the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness, was organized in 1908. Its history has been one of steady growth, the members ever keeping in mind the object for which it was established; namely, to ascertain the causes of blindness, and to take such measures, in co-operation with the medical profession, as may lead to the elimination of such causes.

In June, 1923, Miss Louisa Lee Schuyler, the founder of the Committee, was awarded the Roosevelt medal for distinguished services to the American people in the social welfare field. Among her many achievements was cited her great work in preventing blindness and saving sight.

PREPARATION OF TEACHERS FOR CONSERVING SIGHT

Since the last report was issued much emphasis has been placed upon the necessity of teaching children to care for their own eyes. A large number of lectures have been given by members of the staff to school children, mothers' clubs, teachers' organizations, parent-teacher associations and to various child welfare organizations. Very often, however, the public school teacher is the only means of disseminating knowledge on this particular phase of health education. In almost every state teachers are now required by law to make a simple test of the visual acuity of their pupils. Many have not had adequate preparation to carry out this requirement. The fact, therefore, was recognized that a foundation must be laid in the teacher-training institutes. To expedite the inclusion of such preparation courses in the curricula of normal schools, universities, colleges, etc., the New York State Committee for the Prevention of Blindness offered a series of demonstration lectures. The topics outlined were as follows:

NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE

1. The school's responsibility for conserving the sight of pupils.

2. The individual teacher's responsibility and opportunity for conserving the sight of pupils.

3. The structure of the eye; its methods of functioning.

4. Common diseases of the eyes of children. Obvious signs of communicable eye disease to be watched for daily.

5. Preliminary examination of children's eyes by teacher to determine visual acuity. Use of Snellen chart. Checking result by class room observations.

6. Necessity for refraction by competent eyesight specialists in cases of defective vision. Necessity for glasses that "fit."

7. Co-operation of teacher with the school physician and the school nurse.

8. Responsibilities of teachers in schools where school physicians and nurses are not available.

9. Adequate and satisfactory lighting (natural and artificial) for school rooms.

10. Seating arrangements to avoid eye strain for pupils and teacher.

11. The relation of interior decoration to eye strain.

12. Training children to care for their eyes, including the necessity for vocational choice in accordance with individual eye conditions.

13. Information as to ways of avoiding eye hazards and eye strain.

14. Educational and vocational opportunities for the child with seriously defective vision (sight conservation classes).

15. Consideration, according to grade, of different sizes of type used in text books to determine styles and sizes causing least eye strain.

16. Brief bibliography covering the points listed above.

The course includes not only lectures to the students of teacher training institutes but demonstration talks to school children, and the showing of slides and motion pictures. Where apparatus is not available in the schools, moving picture theaters are very generous in making it possible to show the Committee's motion picture, Saving the Eyes of Youth, to audiences of children and parents.

NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE

Lighting conditions are very carefully considered in class rooms, libraries and study halls. Suggestions are made, where necessary, for more adequate lighting and in other cases, a better use of the arrangements already existing is indicated.

The entire course was given for the first time at the State Normal School, Fredonia, New York. The Secretary of the New York State Committee for the Prevention of Blindness gave the lectures to the teachers in training and the Assistant Secretary gave the demonstration talks to the children.

Schools unable to take advantage of the full course were given as many of the lectures as their program permitted. Among these was the State Normal School at Oswego, where a special summer course to nurses preparing to become health teachers was in progress. Lectures were adapted to their particular needs.

GENERAL LECTURES

Since the last report was issued, in addition to the demonstration lectures, 470 lectures have been given to audiences approximating 104,462. These included a number of radio talks to invisible audiences whose numbers cannot even be computed. The lectures given in New York City were arranged by the American Red Cross and the New York Tuberculosis Association.

EYE SURVEY OF CHILDREN IN RURAL SCHOOLS IN ALBANY COUNTY, NEW YORK STATE

One of the most important pieces of work, undertaken at the request of Dr. William A. Howe, Chief Medical Inspector of the University of the State of New York, was a survey of the eyes of children in the rural schools of Albany County. This was made, in co-operation with the New York State Commission for the Blind, to determine the percentage of children suffering from eye defects and diseases in rural communities.

The co-operating organizations assigned members of their staffs to this work, the New York State Commission for the Blind devoting the services of its special eye nurse, Miss Sarah A. Clendinning, and the New York State Committee for the Prevention of Blindness giving the services of its Assistant Secretary, Miss Julia Fulton.

The work was begun in the fall of 1922 but had to be discontinued during the winter months on account of the impassable condition of the roads.

The survey covered the schools of the three supervisory districts in Albany County. For various reasons, a few of the schools were closed, but in all 121 schools were covered and a total of 4,165 children examined. These schools varied from an enrollment of two to several hundred pupils.

All three organizations concerned would have welcomed an examination of the eyes of every child by a thoroughly competent oculist. Since, however, funds did not permit, the examinations were made as thorough as possible by the giving of the visual acuity test for eye defects and the examination of the eyelids for symptoms of eye diseases. No attempt was made to diagnose any of the cases, as this does not fall within the province of a nurse.

A complete tabulation of the results of the survey is given on pages 40 to 49. It is interesting to note that of the 4,165 children examined, 3,489, 83.8 percent, apparently had no eye defect or disease. It is also encouraging to know that of the 676 children, 16.2 per cent, suffering from some eye difficulty, one half had only slightly defective vision in one or both eyes and only 1.8 per cent had seriously defective vision in both eyes.

When each examination was finished a card was filled out stating the condition of the child's eyes. Where eye defects or other difficulties were found to exist, the parents were notified and were asked to assume the responsibility of having them cared for. If the parents were unable to give adequate attention, the case was referred to the county health nurse.

One of the very satisfactory results of the survey has been the correction of many of the defects. Up to the present time, 135 children, 20 percent of those having some eye difficulty, have been examined by an eye specialist and where necessary, treatment has been given or glasses fitted. The work is necessarily slow. A nurse cannot select just the children suffering from eye difficulties and see that these are given immediate attention. Because of the isolation of many of the schools, it is necessary for the nurse to take all children suffering from any physical defect to the nearest large city in groups. As there are but two nurses doing this work in the county, it will take considerable time to cover the schools.

One feature of the survey was an observation of the lighting conditions. In the greater number of schools these are very poor and to this cause many existing eye difficulties may doubtless be laid. Because of the agitation for the consolidation of schools, little attention has been given to present buildings. When this question is definitely settled the rural children may have the benefit of new modern schools or school authorities may remodel the old buildings.

The greatest co-operation in this work was received from the State Department of Education, the State Department of Health, the County Board of Supervisors, the supervisors, principals and teachers of the schools, the City Club of Albany and the nurses of the Albany County Health Service.

The survey was undertaken as a piece of demonstration work. The co-operating organizations, therefore, offer the following recommendations:

That the remaining counties in the state give consideration to the benefits derived, with a view to carrying out such programs on their own responsibilities.

That the lighting conditions in rural schools be made to accord as nearly as possible with the recommendations of the Code of Lighting of School Buildings.

That hygienic seats and desks be provided for pupils and teachers.

That the type of all school books be given careful consideration with a view to conserving sight.

That as soon as possible a thorough examination of the eyes by a qualified oculist be instituted as a part of a regular health examination of rural as well as of urban children.

That a greater effort be made to disseminate knowledge among the teachers in rural school districts as to the best methods of caring for the eyes of children under their charge.

DEFECTIVE VISION AMONG SCHOOL CHILDREN IN NEW YORK STATE

In comparison with the survey it is interesting to note the report of Dr. William A. Howe, Medical Inspector of Schools, of the University of the State of New York for the school year ending July 1, 1923. The report does not include the cities of Buffalo, Rochester and New York, the statistics of which are given separately.

Total number of children found with defective eyes.....	51,796	8.6%
Total number of children treated for defective eyes.....	23,737	45.8%

The figures were tabulated from the following:

Cities

Number of pupils reported with defective eyes.	17,181	8.1%
Number of pupils treated for defective eyes..	10,372	60.0%

Villages

Number of pupils reported with defective eyes.	5,925	7.9%
Number of pupils treated for defective eyes..	2,808	47.3%

Rural Schools

Number of pupils reported with defective eyes.	28,690	9.2%
Number of pupils treated for defective eyes..	10,557	36.0%

The reports from Buffalo, Rochester and New York City are as follows:

BUFFALO

Number of pupils enrolled.....	75,849	..
Number of pupils examined for defective vision	33,527	44.2%
Number of cases of defective vision.....	2,533	7.6%
Number of cases corrected.....	1,683	66.4%

ROCHESTER

Number of pupils enrolled in public and parochial schools.....	58,064
Number of pupils examined for defective vision.....	54,669	94.2%
Number of cases of defective vision.....	1,319	2.4%*

*Note: The reason given for the very low percentage of defects is that these figures do not include children wearing glasses who had been fitted within a year.

NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE

NEW YORK CITY

Number of new cases . . . . .	24,672
“ “ refractions . . . . .	42,449
“ “ treatments for contagious and other conditions . . . . .	55,381
Prescriptions for glasses . . . . .	11,233
Medical prescriptions . . . . .	71,874
Electrical treatments for corneal scars . . . . .	2,602

It is gratifying to note from Dr. Howe's report that more than ten thousand rural school children were cared for. This means that these children were carefully examined by oculists and fitted with glasses where necessary or given definite treatment for diseased condition of the eyes.

JUNIOR RED CROSS

The Junior Red Cross includes in its program a very constructive piece of conservation of vision work among children. This consists of supplying glasses to children in the public schools, who are found upon examination to need glasses but are financially unable to procure them. Each case is investigated as to the parents' ability to buy the glasses prescribed, and upon the recommendation of the principal of the school, the Junior Red Cross furnishes the glasses, ground according to the oculist's prescription, and fitted into frames of the heavy military type.

During the school year ending June, 1923, the Junior Red Cross supplied glasses to 1,546 children in the city of New York.

CONSERVATION OF VISION CLASSES

As a solution of the problem of educating children who do not have sufficient sight to enable them to take work in the regular grades, yet have too much vision to warrant their being put into classes for the blind, conservation of vision classes were organized. There is now a total of 56 sight saving classes in the state, Albany 1, Buffalo 1, Rochester 3, Syracuse 1, and New York City 50.

A course for teachers wishing to specialize in teaching conservation of vision classes in the public schools has been conducted for the past three years by the School of Education, New York University, Washington Square, New York.

The course is directed by Dr. Margaret Meyers, who in addition to her medical training, is especially qualified through her experience in teaching sight conservation classes.

MIDWIVES

The city of Buffalo is to be congratulated upon the success of an experiment which it has undertaken in an effort to control the practice of midwives. The chief factors are: providing the services of a physician at a nominal sum and licensing and carefully regulating the practice of midwives.

In the last decade the percentage of births attended by physicians and midwives in Buffalo has been greatly changed. Ten years ago,—1913, physicians attended 55.9 percent and midwives 44.1 percent of the total 11,867 births. In 1918 physicians attended 64.3 percent and midwives 35.7 percent of the total 13,970 births. In 1923, physicians attended 81.6 percent and midwives 18.9 percent of the total 12,358 births. The increasing requirements for midwives as to ability, intelligence, knowledge of asepsis, sanitation, etc., together with supervision of their practice by authorities, are eliminating those unfitted for this very important undertaking.

In this experiment the financial aspect no doubt has played a very important part. According to the arrangement, a physician in taking a case includes all medical services in his fee, whereas calling a doctor in a case attended by a midwife means an extra charge.

OPHTHALMIA NEONATORUM

In 1923 in New York State, 48 cases of ophthalmia neonatorum were reported.

A very important regulation was passed by the New York State Board of Health, February, 1922:

PRECAUTIONS TO BE OBSERVED FOR THE PREVENTION OF OPTHALMIA NEONATORUM.—It shall be the duty of the attending physician, midwife, nurse or other person in attendance on a confinement case to use at the time of delivery, prophylactic measures such as the instillation of one percent solution of nitrate of silver or an equally effective agent to prevent ophthalmia neonatorum or the development of sore eyes in the infant, due to infection at birth.

At a meeting of the Board of Health of the City of New York held August 10, 1922, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That Article II of the Sanitary Code be amended by adding thereto a new section, to be numbered 201, to read as follows: Section 201. Precautions to be observed by physicians, nurses, midwives or other attendants for the prevention of ophthalmia neonatorum in the eyes of all new-born children. It shall be the duty of every physician, nurse, midwife or other person in attendance on a confinement case to instil in the eyes of the new-born child, immediately after delivery and before the expulsion of the after-birth, a one per cent (1%) solution of nitrate of silver or an equally effective agent in order to prevent the development of ophthalmia neonatorum in the eyes of all new-born children.

TRACHOMA

In 1910 there were 20,915 cases of trachoma recorded in the public schools of New York City; in 1920 the number had been reduced to 944; in 1923 among the million school children in the City of New York but 217 cases were reported to the public school eye clinics for attention.

So great was the number of cases in the communicable stage in 1912 that on September 26, two special classes were established in Public School 65, Manhattan, so that children suffering from the disease in the communicable stage might receive an education without risk to others. By March 25, 1918, the number of cases had decreased so that it was possible to disband one class. May 28, 1920, the need having past, the second class was disbanded.

This most encouraging decrease has been due largely to the work of the eye clinics maintained by the New York City Department of Health in the public schools, and to the education of the public by various organizations including the New York State Committee for the Prevention of Blindness, to an understanding of the ways in which communicable eye diseases are spread and methods by which these may be checked.

PLANS FOR FUTURE ACTIVITIES

Work for the ensuing year will continue very much along the lines previously followed. The course of lectures to prospective teachers will be introduced into as many of the teacher training institutes as possible. An endeavor will also be made to increase the number of conservation of vision classes.

As a new feature, an effort will be made to arrange for some assistance to be given children following their graduation from conservation of vision classes. In these special classes a child's vision is guarded constantly from the time he enters, but no very definite steps have been taken in New York State to continue this conservation of his eyesight after graduation. The results of years of care can easily be destroyed in a very short time by work causing eye strain.

The New York State Committee for the Prevention of Blindness contemplates its achievements of the past in the work of conserving vision with a certain degree of satisfaction. Much, however, remains to be done and it is confidently hoped that whatever has been accomplished will serve as a stimulus toward greater efforts to prevent that saddest of tragedies—needless blindness.

In Memoriam

During the year the Committee has lost in the death of Dr. Herman M. Biggs one who was ever a staunch friend of the cause of preventing blindness and of saving sight. Dr. Biggs became a member of the New York State Committee for the Prevention of Blindness in 1914, and continued in active service until his death.

On Christmas morning, 1923, Miss Georgina Schuyler passed quietly through the Invisible Door. Her interest had been with the Committee's work ever since its establishment in 1908 by her sister, Miss Louisa Lee Schuyler. Her life was filled with the joy of others. No task was too small or too great for her hand to do or her heart to understand. For the inspiration of her life, the Committee renders grateful appreciation.

Colonel Lewis T. Bryant, for many years Commissioner of Labor of New Jersey, accepted appointment as a Director of the Committee only a few months before his untimely death. Colonel Bryant was greatly interested in saving sight. By his death the Committee has lost an active supporter.

REPORT OF AUDITOR

LEWIS H. CARRIS, ESQ., Managing Director, National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness, 130 E. 22d Street, New York City.

Dear Sir: In accordance with instructions received, we have audited the books and records of your Committee, in your custody, for the calendar year of 1923.

The examination of the vouchers and cancelled bank checks for the period, together with the Treasurer's Statement, disclosed that they were in agreement with the book records.

In connection with the audit, we submit, attached hereto, Statement of Receipts and Disbursements of the Managing Director, and also the Treasurer's Statement for the period under review.

The reconciliation between the balance in the bank at December 31, 1923, as shown by the Bank's Statement and that stated in the Cash Book, is as follows:

CASH BOOK

Balance at January 1, 1923 .....	$59.86
Receipts for Period .....	45,250.00
Interest on Bank Balance .....	62.65
	$45,372.51
Less—Disbursements .....	43,434.10
Balance as per Bank Statement, December 31, 1923 .....	$1,938.41

As before, the books and records were found in excellent and systematic order, and the information necessary for the purpose of this report was easily ascertainable.

In conclusion we certify that the annexed statements* of cash Receipts and Disbursements and the details of the Treasurer's Accounts are in accordance with the books, and that the balance of Cash on Hand is in agreement with the Bank Statement at December 31, 1923, as shown above.

Respectfully submitted,
